Upon This Present

The past years have seen reflected in library thinking the patterns of a country at war: the first adjustments to new fields of interest and to new services, an awareness that the best of the past must be garnered, and the thoughtful forward glance.

This year of 1945 may well be a proving ground. The roseate dreams of new buildings and of expanded services which we hope a time of peace will bring are still far from consummation. It would seem fitting, then, that we pause to take inventory of the present; for it is upon the service rendered 'oday that the persuasion of the library's place in the sun of the Postwar World will be founded. And this at a time when libraries, like so many other organizations and industries, are understaffed, when even the books which are marrow and bone are available in smaller number, when old titles cannot be replaced, and new titles are out of print before the order reaches the publisher.

Libraries must continue to be aware of the communities which they serve, playing an active role in the community life, cognizant of the needs and ready to meet them. A library should be a welcoming place to readers young and old—to the child who seeks it as a familiar and secure haven and to the soldier who is making his adjustment to the return to civilian life, to the high school boy who is asking So, what's the score—and to the scholar who is working on a research problem.

It is useless to dream dreams of greater budgets and modern buildings, of larger book collections and adequate staff if we have not found in the present, the stimulus and the satisfaction which come from daily contact with a job which is worth the doing and to which has been given the full sum of effort and enthusiasm.

The time has come, too, for us to look not only to our own plans in our own communities, but to the broader aspects of our work. In so far as library service is given to any community in the country, to that extent will the library profession have seen its opportunities, have met its responsibilities, and have begun to assume its stature. If we have the confidence in the value of our chosen field of work which our membership in the library profession indicates, we cannot rest either in our achievements of the past, in our present security, or in our postwar plans until people who as yet have no access to books shall have been given the privilege of that service.

In the Library Development Fund, the plans for which are being carried forward under the sponsorship of the American Library Association and the state associations, it is possible to share in the larger duty and the greater opportunity of librarianship. It is to be hoped that to each of us it will seem significant and important that library service be broadened and extended to all people both in this state and in others.

With the new O.D.T. directive in regard to conferences, it has again become necessary for the Executive Board of the M.L.A. to vote that there be no annual meeting this year. We have been fortunate in having been able to gather in the fall of 1944. It will be with special pleasure that we look back upon the stimulus gained from the speakers who brought their messages to us, the discussion of problems with other librarians, and the renewal of friendships.

Meanwhile, the Association will be as successful as each member makes it. When demands are made upon you for the sharing of responsibilities, it is with the realization that each of you is already carrying an overheavy schedule; but also in the confidence that the work will go forward because of that vision which each of you brings to it, and because whatever we can hope of the future will have been built upon our ability to meet this present time and need.—Jean Gardiner Smith, President, Minnesota Library Association.

Disposal of Unneeded Sets, Documents and Periodicals in a Public Library

RAYMOND H. SHOVE

Head, Order and Bindery Department, University of Minnesota Library

Many small and medium-sized public libraries have duplicates, unused publications, and obsolescent material that might well be weeded from their collections to make room for more useful accessions. The LIBRARY DIVISION of the State Department of Education has urged this policy on public libraries for the past several years. The Division has pointed out that some of this material might be purchased by booksellers, and the money received invested in new books. It has also suggested to public libraries that their unneeded titles might be offered gratuitously to the University of Minnesota Library. Many offers of books have been received by the University Library which has been pleased to accept those useful in the Library or for exchange purposes. In many instances this Library has benefited from the publications received. In other instances the books were so common, in such poor condition, and of such little intrinsic value that they were in turn discarded by the University Library. The LIBRARY DIVISION has suggested that it would be useful for librarians to know something about the type of publications likely to be accepted by the University Library, and that the listing of some of the common sets and periodicals would be desirable, together with information on those publications book dealers will or will not purchase.

In preparation for this article a list was compiled of some of the more common sets, exclusive of the complete works of an author, that are not desired by the University Library. These are the titles appearing in Section A of this article. Two additional lists were compiled, one of which, Section C, includes sets that will be accepted as gifts and used by the University Library itself or else be offered in exchange with other libraries for other publications it needs and can use.

Realizing that some public libraries may prefer to dispose of their duplicates and discards by sale to book dealers, the lists were compiled and sent to a number of dealers who were asked which sets they might purchase and at what price. Almost without exception these dealers indicated little or no interest in the sets listed under Section A. One dealer stated, "The books listed in your A list are of no particular interest to us. Transportation charges would probably be greater than what we could pay for them." Another said, "There is absolutely nothing in Section A that we would buy for stock at any price, large or small . . . when this material comes to us in the purchase of a private library or other collection of books, we usually send it to the paper mills."

On the other hand some booksellers showed interest in Section B, and most of them in Section C. One dealer cautioned that "Group B represents the slow-selling kind of material on which a dealer has to get a very large mark-up over the price he pays—for instance, in the case of a Century Dictionary which he might list for $20.00, probably $5.00 would be the most he would pay, because it is a slow selling item which takes up a lot of room." Commenting on sets listed in Section C one dealer stated that "these are standard reference works for which there is a steady demand and any dealer is always glad to get these.

The booksellers' comments on the three lists lend weight to a not always recognized aspect of book values, namely that there is a close relationship between the usefulness of a book in a library and its usefulness to a dealer as saleable merchandise. Although it is probable that a few of the sets in Section A may be worth keeping on the shelves, in most cases librarians will find that these and similar sets might well be dispensed with to make room for more useful books.

The fact that the University Library is not interested in accepting the sets listed in Section A does not mean that they have no place in a large research library. On the contrary they are already in the University Library but additional copies are not needed nor are they particularly useful for exchange purposes. If a library has no other way of disposing of the sets in Section A it may be well to follow the example of the bookseller and send them to the paper mill.

SECTION A

Listed below are the more common sets most frequently found in public libraries. It should be kept in mind that the dealers listed at the end of this article are not interested in purchasing at any price any of the items noted in this section.

SECTION B

The sets listed here are not those in most demand by libraries and bookdealers, but they are more useful than those in Section A. If in usable condition they should not be sold for waste paper. If a library has good unmarked copies of these or similar sets it does not want to retain they can be sold to dealers at moderate prices. Some dealers will buy stamped copies in good condition. The prices listed are those suggested by dealers and which are likely to be paid by them for sound unmarked sets. Difficulty may be encountered in locating a dealer interested in some of these titles. Dealers likely to be interested will be found at the end of this article.

It is important to remember that the price a dealer can afford to pay for books in relation to the price at which he expects to sell them depends largely upon their demand. For example, he may list a set of the Messages and papers of the presidents in his catalog at $10. It may take years and several listings before he sells the set, and it is entirely possible that he may never find a buyer. Transportation costs may be about all a dealer can profitably pay for sets that are in so little demand. On the other hand most dealers will gladly pay from 50% to 60% of the price they expect to ask for a set of the Encyclopedia of religion and ethics, knowing that it will have a ready sale.

SECTION C

Listed here are a few examples of useful sets that the University Library will be pleased to accept, either for use in the Library or for exchange with libraries in other countries. There are many libraries in China and Russia, for example, that would consider such sets desirable acquisitions. It is true, however, with a few exceptions, that if a small or medium-sized public library has single copies of such sets on its shelves they should be retained. Among exceptions, if a library has late editions of the Americana and Britannica, it is not likely that it will be necessary to keep earlier editions. Again, if a library is so fortunate as to have both the great Dictionary of American biography, and Appleton's cyclopedia of American biography, the latter set will not be needed.

This serves to emphasize the fact that with well known and widely distributed sets such as are listed here, both book dealers and the University Library are most interested in those that are likely to be useful in small libraries.

As has already been suggested libraries will not find it difficult to sell to dealers unneeded copies of the set in Section C, provided they are in good condition, and particularly if they do not carry library marks. A few sets that are most in demand will bring almost as much marked as they will unmarked.

Dealer's selling price of the latter depends on edition and condition, usually ranging from around 20.00 to 35.00. The full-size Cambridge ed. generally sells at from 25.00 to 50.00. The usual price of the 14th ed. is from 75.00 to 90.00 depending on the imprint date, binding and condition. The latest printings do not often appear on the secondhand market.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

Research libraries count among their important holdings publications issued by the various states and by the United States government. Usually the largest libraries try to secure most, and in some cases all, United States documents and the documents of their own state. Even large research libraries customarily select for acquisition only the most useful documents issued by other states.

U. S. DOCUMENTS

The University Library lacks many United States documents issued prior to 1900 and solicits reports from Minnesota libraries having such unneeded documents. There are some that are so common they are not worth reporting. Among these are the Congressional Record, Annual Report of the Department of Agriculture, and the Records of the War of the Rebellion.

Of United States publications issued since 1900 many House and Senate Hearings before 1924 are lacking from the Library's collection. Also desired are publications issued by the United States National Museum and the Smithsonian Institution. In general all reports dealing with the natural and physical sciences are in demand.

STATE DOCUMENTS

The University Library can use many Minnesota documents issued prior to 1880 and House and Senate Journals and Executive Documents regardless of date.

For other states the following are among those particularly desired:

House and Senate Journals Constitutional Conventions

Executive Documents
Statutes and Attorney General Reports

(For Law Library)
Publications dealing with the natural and physical sciences

Many of the United States and state publications mentioned above are in demand by dealers.

MAGAZINES

Magazines are essential in both the small and medium-sized public library and in the large research library. As magazine files grow older the amount of use made of them usually diminishes to such an extent that the small public library will find it difficult to justify keeping on its shelves any but the most used titles. On the other hand the older periodicals retain their usefulness for research purposes and the logical place to preserve them is in the large library. The University Library has on its shelves most of the titles, particularly those of nationwide circulation published since 1900, commonly found in the smaller libraries throughout the state, and therefore is not interested in securing additional files. With a few exceptions the University Library will be glad to learn of any unneeded nineteenth century magazines in Minnesota libraries, and will consider purchasing those that it does not already have. Among the exceptions are Harpers' Magazine, Atlantic Monthly, Scribners, and Century, which are quite common and widely distributed. Few dealers will pay more than transportation costs for them.

Most of the popular widely circulated magazines currently received on subscription by the small and medium-sized public library have little or no sale value. This is particularly true of unbound volumes. In a few instances however the early years are in demand at high prices. Perhaps the outstanding example is the Readers Digest for the years 1922 to 1927, the earlier years being particularly valuable. The issues of recent years are very common and have little sale value. Another exception is the National Geographic Magazine for the years prior to 1910, the earliest issues being among the most valuable of any of the magazines published during the period. Unbound volumes since 1916 have practically no sale value. All issues of a less popular and less widely distributed magazine, Antiques, are in demand by dealers.

Many scientific and technical magazines, particularly those of limited circulation, have excellent sale values. A few examples are the Journal of Biological Chemistry, Modern Plastics, Genetics, and Bacteriological Review. Dealers sell files of these at from $5 to $10 a volume or more, and are usually glad to buy at good prices. Magazines of this kind are not often on the subscription lists of small or medium-sized public libraries but may occasionally be received as gifts. They should never be disposed of as waste paper. They may be offered for sale to one of the magazine dealers or to the University Library. One of the magazines in this classification most often offered to libraries, the Iournal of the American Medical Association. is widely circulated and has little sale value.

As an aid to Minnesota libraries the University Library offers to supply, from its serials price file, information on magazine values and advice on their disposal. Librarians should indicate in each case whether or not volumes are bound. Many popular magazines that are valueless unbound are saleable if well bound.

The American Library Association's Committee on Aid to Libraries in War Areas is interested in securing gifts of scientific and scholarly periodicals for distribution to foreign research centers. Lists of the periodicals wanted can be secured by writing to the Association.

INDIVIDUAL VOLUMES

In this article attention has been given here primarily to sets and serial publications. It should be mentioned however that there is more demand by booksellers and large libraries for books published separately. Lists of such unneeded books can be sent to any of the book dealers listed at the end of this article or to the University Library. Booksellers are more selective in purchasing separate books with library marks than they are in purchasing marked magazines or documents. As a matter of fact there is little difference in the sale value of a marked and unmarked file of a desirable magazine.

Individual listing of the author, title, and date of books to be disposed of is perhaps most satisfactory. If this is not possible a letter giving a general description of the collection and listing a few is the next best method. Very few books have any value if they are badly worn or have pages missing.

Unneeded publications can in most instances be sold to best advantage to booksellers. The University Library will pay transportation charges on acceptable gifts, and will consider purchasing important publications sought by the Library.

Scott Adams' The O. P. Market, a subject directory to the specialities of the out-of-print book trade, N. Y., Bowker, 1944, is a useful guide in the selling as well as in the purchase of books, documents and periodicals.

BOOK DEALERS

The following dealers have indicated an interest in purchasing the sets in Sections B and C, although not all of them the same

- Dale Putnam, 1602 North Fell Avenue, Blooming, Illinois. This dealer buys about half of his stock from small public libraries and will purchase both marked and unmarked volumes.
- Friedmans', 18 West 23rd Street, New York.
- Argosy Book Stores, 114 East 59th Street, New York.
- Book Farm, Hattiesburg, Mississippi. Interested in buying books on the South.
- Cadmus Book Shop, 18 West 56th Street, New York 19, New York.
- Arthur H. Clark Company, 1214 South Brand Boulevard, Glendale, California.
- Dawson's Book Shop, 627 South Grand Avenue, Los Angeles, California.
- Mayfair Bookshop, Inc., 7 West 49th Street, New York 20, New York.

DOCUMENT DEALERS

Among those specializing in government documents are the following:

- J. S. Canner, 909 Boylston Street, Boston 15, Mass.
- Central Book Co., 261 Broadway, New York 7, New York.
- Luther M. Cornwall, 261 Broadway, New York 7, New York.

Library Development Fund

Delegates from 33 states meeting in Chicago January 19-20 enthusiastically endorsed the objectives of the American Library Association's campaign for a LIBRARY DEVELOPMENT FUND. The drive to secure $105,000 to finance a four-year program is scheduled to open April 1. This is a campaign to raise funds in order to:

- Maintain a representative of libraries in Washington under the direction of the A.L.A.:
  - (a) To help secure Army camp library books and equipment primarily for rural library service, when this property is no longer needed by the Army.
    - (b) To help make other federally-owned surplus property, including books, available to college, university, school and public libraries, state library extension agencies, and other publicly-supported or tax-exempt libraries.
    - (c) To provide federal agencies with information concerning the nation's needs for improved and extended library service.
    - (d) To help interpret to federal officials the needs and functions of libraries of all kinds.
- Enable the American Library Association to carry on a national public relations program directly and indirectly in support of these and related objectives.

Success in the above efforts will carry forward a long time objective of the A.L.A. to increase the educational facilties of the country through the extension of library service.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The importance of this campaign and the reasons for its motivation can be best explained in the form of a series of questions and answers which have been set forth below. They should serve fully to inform all librarians, trustees and other interested citizens about the impending campaign and the need for achieving its aims:

• What's THE CAMPAIGN FOR? To raise funds to maintain a representative of libraries in Washington and to carry on a national public relations program in support of the idea of making good library service available for all citizens.

- Why Do Libraries Need Representation? Because every library and librarian is affected by federal laws and regulations of increasing number and importance. Because many of the 35,000,000 Americans now without public library service will continue without it for a long time unless there is federal aid. Because we want our millions of exservice men and women who have had excellent library service in the Army and Navy to return to their homes with a better chance for good library service. Because good libraries for all citizens are a basic necessity in a thriving democracy.
- What Would a Washington Representative Do? He would supply information to Congressmen and administrative officials and be on the spot when matters of vital importance to libraries or librarians come up; and, in turn, he would correspond with state library leaders and keep them informed about pending legislation and regulations. He would call on various officials whose regulations affect libraries on such matters as priorities, surplus property, postal rates, document distribution, etc.
- Who WILL BE THE REPRESENTATIVE? The man or woman who, in the opinion of the Executive Board, is best qualified by experience and ability to represent librarians and trustees.
- Is There Anything of VITAL IMPORTANCE TO LIBRARY INTERESTS Now Pending in Washington? Yes. The Army officials tell us that hundreds of thousands of good books now in Army libraries, and other equipment such as file cases, typewriters, trucks, etc., will be disposed of when demobilization gets under way. If we are on hand at the proper hour and have taken the preliminary steps, the Surplus Property Administration, or Congress, may transfer these books and equipment to the States. It is an opportunity that we must be ready for.
- CAN'T THE U. S. OFFICE OF EDUCATION DO THIS JOB? There are some jobs which can only be done by non-governmental agencies.
- Why Doesn't A.L.A. Move Its Head-QUARTERS TO WASHINGTON? Obviously now is not the time to move a large staff to crowded Washington. Action on so debatable a question would have to follow full consideration by A.L.A. members.

- What Kind of Public Relations Program Is Planned? Public relations activities are an essential part of the library development program. The plan is (a) to keep library personnel and trustees informed of developments in federal activities affecting libraries; (b) to present library services and needs more convincingly to the general public; (c) to emphasize graphically the present inadequacies of library service; (d) to coordinate the existing channels of library public relations, such as state library agencies, associations, and individual libraries.
- How Much Will It Cost? Probably between $20,000 and $30,000 a year. Present tentative estimate: $26,250, mostly for salaries of representative, public relations assistant and stenographers, and also for rent, travel, postage, telegraph and supplies. The A.L.A. Executive Board will prepare working budgets and supervise expenditures. All accounts will be audited. Efforts will be made to avoid both niggardliness and extravagance, to strike a happy medium.
- What Is the Goal? $105,000 for four years of activity.
- Suppose the Total for a Four-Year Program Is Not Raised, Then What? If librarians and trustees follow the inspiring example of the initial donors, there need be no fear of failure to reach the goal set. Whatever the amount raised, it will always be up to the Executive Board of A.L.A. to decide how to handle and budget the funds.
- WILL THERE BE YEARLY CAMPAIGNS FOR FUNDS FOR THIS PURPOSE? No. Enough is sought now to finance the program for four years.
- WHY ISN'T THE MONEY APPROPRIATED FROM REGULAR A.L.A. FUNDS? Present income will not permit it without scrapping other activities which the Executive Board believes the members are unwilling to have scrapped. Much of the A.L.A. income and all of its grants are for special purposes and may not be used for anything else.
- Can't We Get Foundation Help? Foundations consistently do not make grants for such purposes.

• Where's the Money Coming From? From those who best understand the necessity of extending library services to all the people, namely, from librarians, library trustees, and from publishers, booksellers, bookbinders, library supply houses and interested citizens, informally approached by local campaign workers.

• What Should My Contribution Be? Since all contributions to the Fund are on a purely voluntary basis, there is no fixed scale. Contributions naturally will vary depending on income. If each one contributes an average of 4% of one month's salary, the A.L.A. is reasonably certain of attaining the library workers' share of the campaign goal. Translated into terms of time worked, this would mean the contribution of roughly one day's work over the entire four-year period of the fund's program.

It is hoped that librarians in the higher salary brackets will wish to contribute substantially more than the 4% average. Approximately eighty individuals have already made advance subscriptions of nearly $8,000 which, in most cases, is 10% to 33% of one month's salary.

- IF I AM A LIBRARY TRUSTEE? Any gift will be appreciated. It is hoped that 30,000 trustees will wish to participate with small or large contributions. Trustees have as great a stake as librarians in the objectives of the campaign.
- WILL LIBRARIES CONTRIBUTE AS INSTITUTIONS? Two have already done do. It is expected that many libraries may not be free to contribute for this purpose because of legal restrictions or board policies. A library's contribution should not take the place of individual donations from staff or trustees.
- How Are Contributions and Pledges Made? Gifts of $10 or more may be pledged and paid in four or fewer annual installments. Cards for such pledges should be sent to A.L.A. headquarters by the state director for collection.

Gifts of less than $10. Cards should be turned in immediately and payment made to solicitor before June 1, 1945. This rule is to avoid large accounting expense for handling collections.

 Are Donations Deputible for Income Tax? Contributions to A.L.A. always have been deductible for federal income tax purposes.

MINNESOTA'S PART

The campaign in Minnesota will begin on April 1, when the national campaign gets under way, and will continue until May 31st. All librarians, trustees, and other interested persons will have an opportunity to contribute at that time to the Library Development Fund. Minnesota's quota has been tentatively set at $2,850 although it is expected that total contributions will be considerably in excess of this figure.

The state campaign is under the direction of Donald E. Strout of the library school faculty of the University with the assistance of Jean Gardiner Smith, M.L.A. president, Lee F. Zimmerman, and a campaign committee made up of Minnesota librarians and trustees.

Reading in 1944

In 1944 the average American wanted to read about his own personal problems first, and about the war and the state of the world second, according to the A.L.A. In compiling data from all parts of the country, the Association notes a more noticeable slackening of interest in war reading on the two coasts, where it was most intense in 1943, while many communities in the middle west report steady and sometimes increasing demand for war books.

The most obvious change in reading interests during the year was the sudden, nation-wide drop in technical reading. In some cities the drop in demand amounted to as much as 40%.

On the whole, more people were reading in 1944 than in other war years. For the first time since the country began to prepare for war, the steady decrease in book circulation has been halted. The use of libraries for reference and information has never dropped, and is still increasing.

While the general public seems only superficially interested in post-war planning, there is a considerable demand in some areas from business, club members, community planners and students. There is a great deal of interest in post-war building of all kinds.

Many librarians are concerned about the lack of general awareness of the readjustment problems which veterans and their families must face. Club Study groups, teachers and clergymen are reading about the probable difficulties ahead, but on the whole families and individuals are not seeking help from books. Librarians believe this is partly due to the fact that books which have been published are heavy going for the average reader. They urge the publication of easily readable pamphlets and novels which deal realistically with the psychological problems of veterans.

POURPARLER

This department has been created primarily for the benefit of those heading up small public libraries. It will be oriented around queries raised by librarians or trustees in letters requesting information or suggestions. Questions will be selected (and answers given) in relation to their general application to the small library.

Public Library Standards

Question: What are good standards to set up for our library in the post-war era? I am anxious to study this matter, draw up recommendations and present them to my board for discussion and adoption.

As an aid in developing satisfactory standards for your library we would urge you to obtain a copy of Post-War Standards for Public Libraries, A.L.A., 1943. $1.50. This book presents a general over-all picture of public library standards which should be especially helpful to all libraries.

For the purpose of indicating the nature, scope and assistance which may be obtained by public libraries from this book, a few of its main recommendations are noted below for the information of librarians.

Size of Library Unit

The effective library unit in a motor age will be large enough to provide essential library services and efficient administration through:

- Minimum income of $25,000 per year for the library.
- Independent city libraries, from which adjoining communities or counties may be served by contract.
- County libraries serving the entire area of large counties or all but one or more cities with separate libraries.
  - Regional or multi-county libraries.
- Federated groups of libraries providing cooperative services.

General Standards of Service

It is an obligation of public libraries to integrate its services with the work of other social and cultural agencies.

In evaluating the library as an institution of democracy, all types of service require careful measurement. To use circulation as the only measure of library service is unsound. The information and guidance functions are equally important.

Effective public library service requires a program of public relations and reading stimulation which makes the public aware of library service and encourages the use of these services.

Library service should not be stereotyped in form or pattern. Experimentation should be encouraged, both in kinds of service and in methods of recording and evaluating services

Borrowers

The number of registered borrowers in public library units should meet the following minimum quantitative standards based on a three-year registration period:

- Adult—20 to 40% of the population fifteen years and over.
- Juvenile—35 to 75%, five to fifteen years.

Circulation

The circulation of books, periodicals, pamphlets, maps, pictures, films, phonograph recordings, etc., for home use in public library units should meet the following minimum quantitative standards:

- Adult Books—3 to 10 volumes per capita for the population of 15 years and over.
- Juvenile Books—10 to 30 volumes per capita for the population from 5 through 14 years of age.

Income

The amount needed annually, in relation to the population, is:

- $1.00 per capita for limited or minimum service.
- $1.50 per capita for reasonably good service,

• $2.00 per capita for superior service.

• $25,000 minimum annual income for the library on which to give modern efficient library service.

Small libraries can realize this standard by affiliating with their neighbors in library cooperatives, federations or a pooling of resources.

Budget

Normal distribution for the average public library will approximate the following proportions:

• Salaries (excluding wages of the building staff) 55%.

Books, periodicals and binding—25%.

Maintenance and other expenditures, including wages of building staff—20%.

These suggested proportions are for the average public library with an adequate total income and should not be applied to all libraries without discrimination.

Book Collection

The number of volumes per capita in a public library should meet the minimum standards shown in the following table:

• 3 up to 25,000 volumes in cities of 6,000

-10,000 people.

• 2.5 up to 70,000 volumes in cities of 10,000—35,000 people.

• 2.0 up to 175,000 volumes in cities of 35,000—100,000 people.

• The minimum size of the book stock of any public library, as an independent unit, should be 6,000 volumes regardless of the population served. A smaller collection cannot be expected to achieve the objectives here set forth.

• The [number] of a n n u a l accessions should normally be 2/10 of a volume or more in smaller communities (under 1003-000).

• The stock of books in a public library available for the use of children should be ample for children of all ages. As a general norm, children's books should constitute from 20 to 25% of the total number of volumes in the library collection.

• In terms of annual expenditures, a similar proportion of 20 to 25% of the total book expenditures should be devoted to children's books. While they cost appreciably less per volume than adult books, their consumption in use is greater, and therefore replacements must be more frequently made.

• The adult book stock should emphasize nonfiction and represent all topics of general interest, as well as topics of special interest to each community. The proportion of adult nonfiction holdings to total adult holdings should be at least 60%, with the nonfiction ration generally increasing with the population of the area served.

Library Administration

Good administration requires that sound principles be followed in the management of a library. Some of these principles are:

• The functions of the library board and the chief librarian and the library staff should be clearly differentiated. The library board is the legislative body for the public library. The Board approves library policies and makes itself responsible for them and holds the librarian accountable for the results of his administration. The board itself does not administer the library.

 The library board should normally act as a committee of the whole. In most libraries, standing committees are unnecessary, but special committees appointed for limited periods to consider special problems are often desirable.

• The employment of numerous standing committees may interfere with the proper performance of the functions of the board and librarian. In American practice board meetings are usually held once a month.

 The chief librarian should be the administrator of the library and the technical adviser of the board.

• To the librarian as executive officer of the board should be delegated executive powers, the freedom to manage the normal operations of the institution within the limits of the broad policies which the trustees and the librarian have fashioned.

 The chief librarian should prepare the budget, subject to approval by the board; should nominate all staff members to the board, which should appoint library personnel only on his recommendation; and should be responsible for book selection.

• The librarian should attend all meetings of the board as its administrative executive and should participate in their proceedings. From their librarian, trustees should expect recommendations and proposals. These they should accept, amend or reject.

To become the people's university, the library must be staffed by librarians who are educators in a broad sense, not by custodians of books. The professional librarian:

• Is a graduate of a college or university with professional education.

 Has personality and qualities for leadership in the educational, cultural, and civic life of the community.

 Understands world problems and is aware of community needs, objectives, and problems.

Has wide knowledge of books.

Is alert to changing conditions.

 Devises and utilizes new means and methods.

The library staff should:

 Be appointed by the library board on recommendation of the chief librarian.

• Be certified under state law, as to minimum qualifications.

 Be organized in departments or divisions for effective functioning.  Operate under accepted personnel practices, including classification and pay plans, and retirement and pension provisions.

Buildings

The post-war library building should be fully adapted to the many, varied services of the modern library and should be:

 Planned by a competent librarian and architect working in collaboration.

 Centrally located for the convenience of the greatest number of people.

Functional in design, hospitable in appearance.

Planned for 20 years' expansion of service and community growth.

 Provided with small meeting rooms for discussion groups, film forums, radio and record listening, and story hours.

• Equipped with the best modern lighting, heating, air-conditioning, and furnishings, and with special library equipment—bookstacks, other shelving, catalog cases, charging desks.

An obsolete library building is:

 Completely outgrown due to population ncreases.

• Cannot be satisfactorily enlarged due to poor original planning and inflexible structure.

Is badly located due to shifting neighborhoods.

How Good Is Your Library

 Is it prepared to meet with its services and resources the numerous and complex problems of today and tomorrow?

• Does it have an active program for informal adult education adapted to the needs of your community? Readers' advisory service to individuals and groups? Cooperation with the educational programs of civic, labor, agricultural, and other groups? Discussion groups? Film forums?

• How many people in the community use the public library?

• Are your library trustees men and women of ability?

• Is the size of your library unit suited to the horse and buggy age, or the motor age?

 What is your library income, and how does it compare with the standard?  What areas, and how many homes, are more than a mile from the main library or branch?

 Has your county accepted the responsibility of providing adequate library service for all its people?

• Is your library operating in an antiquated building which is outgrown, poorly located, arranged, heated, ventilated and lighted?

• Is the book collection large enough, broad enough in scope, with frequent enough additions, to meet community needs?

Is your library staffed by professionally trained and qualified librarians?

How Does Your LIBRARY STAND?

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

SALMAGUNDI

Elva Barber Bailey

Mrs. Elva Bailey, for many years head of the Hospital Service of the Minneapolis Public Library, passed away January 2, 1945, at the home of her son, Charles, in Toledo.

She entered the Minneapolis Library in 1918 as a Reference Assistant while she completed the full year's training in the Library class then conducted by Miss Hutchinson.

She was then put in charge of the new Hospital Service which she organized and developed until every hospital (15) in the city had a library station and was visited twice a week with trained library service.

A graduate of Northwestern, a constant and discriminating reader, she had a cheerful and sympathetic personality that particularly fitted her for this work and that endeared her alike to patrons and to fellowworkers.

She retired in 1940 but continued her contacts and numerous friendships with the staff.—G. A. C.

Personnel

 Mrs. Merle Lennartson, for the past three years librarian at Redwood Falls, has been appointed to succeed the late Alma Penrose at St. Cloud.

• Frances Klune, who has been librarian of the Chisholm Public Library for the past five years and children's librarian for the previous ten years, has resigned. She plans to take a long rest before returning to library work. Mrs. Jane Lockhart Bush has been appointed acting librarian.

• Marie Knudson, Fergus Falls public librarian since 1942, has resigned to become librarian of the Monroe County Library, Monroe, Michigan.

• Maud Grogan, librarian of the Cloquet public library for many years, has resigned to accept a position with the Corona, California, Public Library.

• Helen Jensen, children's librarian, has been appointed to succeed Miss Grogan at Cloquet.

Belle Owens Honored

Belle M. Owens, Reader's Aid, St. Paul Public Library, retired December 31, 1944, after 45 years of service. She has served under every librarian appointed since the formation of a city public library. Miss Owens was secretary-treasurer of the M.L.A. in 1917 and president of the Twin City Library Club in 1917-18.

On January 13 the Staff Association gave a dinner in her honor which was attended by the Mayor and other city officials, members of the advisory library board, staff members and representative citizens.

The City Council adopted a resolution conveying "thanks and gratitude for exceptional service to all the citizens of St. Paul."

A Memorial Library

Early in January the Minnesota Poll of Public Opinion showed that Minnesotans favor a public building as a war memorial and that a new library headed the list. The idea that a new library would make a fitting war memorial crystallized in Minneapolis last August when the Daily Times sponsored a letter contest which since has furthered the idea of a new public library for Minneapolis as a war memorial.

In a letter to the editor of the Times, Miss Sarah Wallace of the Minneapolis library staff stated that "We claim that a library is one of the most fitting of functional memorials for our city. It knows no prejudices, racial, social, religious or educational. It is one of the last strongholds of the rugged individualist, a place where he can pursue his own interests, seek his own answers unregimented by classes, courses or programs of study. It requires no certificates, no fees, no credits, no diplomas, no degrees. It practices democracy. It is a living proof of America's freedom of thought, speech, expression. It stands for everyone in the community and it stands behind everyone in the community. The benefits it offers are limited only by the individual user's own interest and initiative."

Adult Books of 1944

Compiled by Agatha L. Klein

This list does not include all of the "best" books published last year. It is intended primarily as a purchasing checklist for the smaller public libraries and contains titles selected for their readability, general appeal and usefulness in special subject fields.
